Tom Allason, Founder & CEO

In '03, Tom founded eCourier.co.uk, the online courier company with the purple vans. Tom served as eCourier's CEO from '04 until '08, overseeing the company's growth to £7.5m turnover and over 250 staff including couriers and raising £8m from angels and a VC. Tom left eCourier in '08 to found Shutl. In '07, Tom was named "Top Gun" by Growing Business magazine and eCourier "London's Most Inspirational Business" by the Evening Standard. Tom serves on the advisory boards of YumShare and BookingBug and is a founding trustee of FoundationStone, a charitable trust that invests in early stage charities.

Dr Simon Murdoch, Non Executive Chairman & Investor

Experienced as both an Internet entrepreneur and an investor, Simon set up online bookstore Bookpages in '96 and sold it to Amazon in '98. As VP Europe for Amazon, he managed huge growth from start-up through to multimillion turnover and hundreds of staff. In 2000 Simon co-founded and became a partner of Episode 1 Partners, an early stage technology VC that managed the $100m Chase Episode 1 Fund. Episode 1 invested in nine businesses, notably Betfair.com. As an Angel investor, he has invested in Shazam, been chairman of Video Island (now merged with and renamed LoveFilm.) and Zoopla where he is currently a director.

Big Bang Ventures, Investor

Big Bang Ventures is a seed and early-stage venture capital fund for high-growth digital media and software companies. In addition to funding, Big Bang Ventures leverages its extensive operational experience and worldwide network to actively help startups accelerate their growth. Formed in 2000, Big Bang Ventures invests between €0.3 to €3 million per company. Investments include Avinity (acquired by Active Video Networks; DataCenterTechnologies (acquired by Symantec); Clear2Pay, a leading e-payments company and Q-layer (acquired by Sun Microsystems).

Paul Birch, Investor

Paul launched himself into the UK dotcom boom of '99 as an Internet Entrepreneur. After a few failed ideas (and 'one heck of a remortgage') he first found success with BirthdayAlarm.com which Paul founded with brother Michael and his wife Xochi in 2001. They grew the business to 50 million members and revenue in the millions of USD and used the profits to found their next venture, the social network, Bebo that was sold to AOL for $850m in 2008. Currently Paul is focusing on investing in Internet and more traditional businesses. His Internet investments include: mybuilder.com crunch.co.uk, growsonyou.com and gomix.com.

Mark Zaleski, Investor

Mark is an investor, senior executive and Director specialising in multi-country high-growth Internet businesses. Mark was Chairman and CEO of Dailymotion '07- '09. Under his leadership, Dailymotion became the world's number one independent video-sharing site with over 60M unique visitors and 1 billion video views per month. From '00-'07, Mark was CEO for QXL ricardo plc, a leader of online consumer trading platforms. He led QXL to profitability and to becoming the best performing stock on the London Stock Exchange's Main Market in both '04 and '05. It was sold for nearly £1 billion in '07. Prior to QXL, Mark was President of Operations for Webvan, Inc. He launched the company's operations and with other key officers raised a total of nearly $900 million including the company's IPO in 1999. Mark is currently Chairman of DVDpost, a Venture Partner in Big Bang Ventures and an angel investor in several e-commerce businesses across Europe.

Robert Dighero, Investor

Robert has spent the last 14 year working with the Internet. He is an e-commerce investor across Europe, having led a number of investment syndicates and taken on an array of board and advisory roles. Robert was previously CFO of QXL ricardo from '98 to '08, overseeing development from start-up to its eventual sale to Naspers. Robert was short-listed for CBI / Real FD, "FD of the Year" in '07 and the following year negotiated the £1 billion sale of QXL via a public take-over offer. Prior to QXL, Robert was CFO of AOLUK, worked in M&A at Bertelsmann and was a consultant at Bain & Co. Robert left Cambridge with a First class degree and a post-graduate degree in Engineering. He has an MBA from Insead.

Chris Öhlund, Non Executive Director

Chris has 15 years logistics and 10 years internet experience in both Europe and the United States. As CEO, Chris led DPD, an €800m market-leading logistics company in Germany into its most successful era during its 30-year history. As a member of the executive board and SVP Europe at Geodis S.A., Chris turned around the European Division (€1 billion revenue) from a five-year streak of losses to break even in '06. Previously, he was part of the team that transformed QXL Ricardo plc from a business with a market cap of under £750k to an eventual sale to Naspers for £946m. Chris's first start-up experience came with Webvan, where he ran the first east coast operating site and built an online business with a run-rate of $100m+. Chris serves (since 2003) as Chairman of the Supervisory Board of publicly listed ricardo.de AG
